REFLECTIONS

FROM STEVE PENNER

Infrastructure

It's not uncommon these days to hear someone say, "the infrastructure in our country needs a lot of work." I think about this when I drive down the 99 or even on Frankwood Avenue near our home. It's a pretty bumpy ride out there on the freeways. On Frankwood there is about a one inch drop between the left and right hand lanes approaching Manning. Every now and then it reminds me of some African roads I've been on in the past.

We just assume the smooth functioning of our infrastructure. From gas lines to bridges to water pipes to towers for our cell phones, we just figure that somehow it will all keep on working. Our Infrastructure, of course, needs tending. Someone's got to be looking out for it making sure it all works, being ready to repair things when something breaks down.

Perhaps we can make some analogies to infrastructure around our church. As we revamp our sound system to accommodate two services in our sanctuary, and to ensure better hearing for all, work has been done on our infrastructure. In recent weeks hammers and nails and cables and wires have been used and manipulated. While sitting in the pews one sees in part. There's a whole lot more going on beneath the floor's surface. Dick Peterson, Jose Mireles, Bob Mason, Leonard Mireles, and others have all given significant time working on our infrastructure.

We can also think about the administrative structures of our congregation. Our church council, our board of deacons, and various committees around the church have been in place for quite a few years, their current structures date to the last constitutional revision in 1993. As time goes by and our church gradually evolves, we can ask the question, do our current structures continue to carry well the freight of our church?

I wonder too about infrastructure in a personal way. What most people know about us is evidenced when we come out into the light of day, into the public sphere, whether in the community, at church, or at work. But how do we tend to our entire being, mind, body, and soul, when we are not out in the glare of the day? Here I think of spiritual disciplines like prayer, Bible reading and quiet. I think about what we expose our minds to—the books we read, the things we watch on tv, the things we peruse on the internet. I think about how we treat our bodies, exercise, what we eat and drink. I think we are healthier and more able to serve and live fruitfully as citizens of God's kingdom when we make the effort to tend to the infrastructure of our own lives.

May God grant us the wisdom to know how and when to give special attention to the infrastructure of our own lives, our church, and our community.

THOUGHTS...

by Barbara Ewy

In Sunday school last Sunday our Bible lesson told of Jesus walking along the shore of the Sea of Galilee and calling the fishermen to be his disciples. As he walked on through the town he met Matthew the tax collector and called him to follow. We learned that Jesus called twelve disciples who left what they were doing and followed him, learning from him. Then Jesus also sent them out to share the good news of God's love for people.

I teach the preschool Sunday school class. For young children thought patterns are very concrete. We traced our feet and hands on large sheets of paper and glued on the words, "When we follow Jesus our hands help Jesus." Helping hands do kind things for others. Helping hands pick up the toys. Helping hands share a cookie or greet a friend with a high five or special handshake. Helping hands dry the dishes or set the table. Helping hands work together to build a tower of blocks.

When Jesus called the fishermen to follow he said to them, "Follow me and I will make you fishers of people." They followed and he sent them out to share the good news. When we follow Jesus word and deed go together. The good news of God's love requires that we show love as well as talk about it. Loving words and kind deeds go together.

Most of the children had finished their hands and feet picture. They had already heard the story. They were enjoying play time. The boys were putting blocks on chairs and pushing them around the room. It was loud and noisy. It was a good time. But a few children had arrived late. Although they had finished their picture they had missed the Bible story. They gathered with me around our story poster and we were enjoying the story together. But the boys were loud and we could not hear. A simple request to play with the chairs in the other part of the room was listened to and followed. One boy wandered over to hear the story again. Respect was shown. Word and deed went together. It was a good morning.

Sometimes as adults we make things too complicated. We look for just the right word. We try to do exactly the right thing. On big issues we worry about what is the right thing. It isn't always "black and white"; we live with gray areas. Sometimes it seems like there are no good options. The big issues can be overwhelming.

Working with the children reminds me that what God asks of us is simple really: it is to love God with all our heart and love our neighbor as ourselves. The good news that we have to share is that God is love; God loves the world. Those words ring true when our deeds also show love towards our neighbor. That doesn't mean that we never have to wrestle with the big issues; it does give us a path to follow as we discern what is right. I learn a lot from the children. Sometimes it is as simple as turning down the volume so that my neighbor can hear God's good news and join me in the good time that follows.

LAS SIETE MARAVILLAS

A un grupo de estudiantes de una escuela primaria se les pidió que listaran lo que ellos pensaban eran las " 7 maravillas del Mundo moderno ." A pesar de ciertas diferencias, las siguientes maravillas fueron los que más votos recibieron fueron:

1. Las Pirámides de Egipto
2. El Taj Mahal
3. El Gran Cañón de Colorado
4. El Canal de Panamá
5. El Edificio Empire State
6. La Basílica de San Pedro
7. La Gran Muralla China

Mientras contaba los votos, la maestra notó que había una niña que no había terminado de listar sus sugerencias. Así que le preguntó si estaba teniendo problemas con su lista, a lo que la niña respondió:

"Si, un poquito. No puedo terminar de decidirme pues hay muchas."

La maestra entonces le dijo:

"Bueno, léenos lo que tienes hasta ahora y a lo mejor te podemos ayudar".

La niña lo pensó un instante, pero luego leyó:

" Yo pienso que las siete maravillas del mundo son las siguientes":

1. Poder ver
2. Poder oír
3. Poder tocar
4. Poder probar
5. Poder sentir
6. Poder reír
7. Poder amar

El salón se silenció a tal punto que si se hubiera caído un alfiler, se hubiera escuchado.

Reflexión, los atributos de toda buena teoría en ciencia, es que tenga cuidado y movimientos seguros. Esto es sencillez en su expresión y en la relación al explicar fenómenos y/o proceso. La explicación más simple será preferida sobre la más complicada. La palabra de Dios adelante del pensamiento científico, sostiene lo mismo. En la simplicidad hay belleza, verdad, justicia...está Dios. Nosotros, a menudo, somos los que buscamos respuestas complicadas a preguntas o problemas simples.

Eso hace que lo simple, aparentemente ordinario, nos parezca inocuo. Descuidamos las prioridades eternas, por las temporales, preferimos lo material efímero, sobre lo sobrenatural eterno. La niña tiene la razón, ella miro con la perspectiva de Dios, simplicidad, ante una pregunta también sencilla. ¿Qué tememos? ¿A que si respondemos con simplicidad, seremos tratados como lerdos, o tontos?

Lo autentico, lo verdadero, lo justo, lo eterno es simple. Pasamos la vida en busca de respuestas, porque no nos satisface la simplicidad de la verdad eterna. Al final nos rendimos, lamentando una vida malgastada.

FRASE DE PODER. Piensa con simplicidad, y obtendrás verdades profundas

ESCRITURA: Salmo 119:27 ("Hazme entender el camino de tus preceptos, y meditaré en tus maravillas."

Las cosas más preciadas de la vida, no se pueden construir con la mano ni se pueden comprar con dinero. Ojalá y no consideres que estas demasiado (a) ocupado(a) para darle gracias a tu DIOS por todo lo que El te ha dado.

Rumblings Around the Campus by Paul Reimer, Custodian

The holidays are over and winter is here. We just got over 1" of rain here which was greatly appreciated by all.

The trees are bare of leaves and the last of the leaves are on the ground. The lawn is still dormant and white colored. The days are slowly getting longer and the daylight is lasting longer in the afternoon.

The dishwasher was repaired last week, one faucet and drain were also repaired. I will be servicing the lawn equipment this week, changing out the filters on the mower and edger. This is a yearly job.

That is all for now until next month . . . Paul Reimer

10 Commandments of Great Health

As we start a new year most of us make resolutions or make the decision to try to start eating healthier. Here are some tips to help you with this.

1st Commandment

Thou shall eat less fat than thy neighbor. Go from the average of 82g of fat a day down to 50 grams (recommended 30% guideline, on the conservative side). Fat is the number one dietary factor in heart disease and cancer in the U.S.

2nd Commandment

Thou shall exercise more than thy neighbor. Only 15% of U.S. exercises 3 times a week.

3rd Commandment

Thou shall weigh less than thy neighbor. 55% of the U.S. is currently overweight!

4th Commandment

Thou shall floss or get a good pair of dentures. Periodontal disease may increase risk of heart disease, premature births, diabetes, and other health problems.

5th Commandment

Thou shall get thy Total Cholesterol/HDL ratio to 3.5 or less. Have your physician measure it.

6th Commandment

Thou shall eat more, yes more, whole-wheat carbohydrates, fruits and vegetables.

7th Commandment

Thou shall not use tobacco products. They are the cause of the #1 preventable health problem in the U.S. You can never eat so well as to overcome the negative impact that tobacco has on your health.

8th Commandment

Thou shall eat a diet moderate or low in sugar. One Coke or Pepsi has the equivalent of 10 teaspoons of sugar per can. Soft drink consumption is currently 50 gallons per year for every man, woman and child in the U.S. That's almost a 100% increase in the last 20 years.

9th Commandment

Thou shall drink good tasting water. Get at least eight 8 oz cups per day. Bottled spring water or distilled often tastes a lot better than tap water.

10th Commandment

Thou shall eat a variety of foods. There is no perfect food. There is no such thing as junk food. It's how often and how much of anything you eat that matters. Moderation is the foundation upon which nutrition and good health are built.

They believe that they can save their state by putting an end to the military occupation. But the Israeli peace movement has lost momentum in recent years.
